Why is this different??? Business Commander™ is NOT available for purchase! This FileMaker database is a tool that FileMaker experts may use as a starting point when building your customized database system. Doug Flinn, RCC Engineer and Certified FileMaker Partner, says "I don't have to 're-invent the wheel' for the customer when I build their custom database. I start with the Business Commander databases, and simply add the extra features and customization the customer has requested." The results are a customized database, tuned for the customer, but only costing a fraction of building the whole system from scratch.

Why does RCC utilize Business Commander™ for customer projects? Simply, we were tired of building the same database modules time and time again. Most FileMaker consultants don't offer a similar "starting point" database to the customer. Richard Carlton comments "we have heard a number of customers complain that the average consultant prefers to build their projects from scratch, running up the costs to the customer. We create a competitive advantage for ourselves by offering a highly compelling solution that most small businesses cannot afford to ignore."

Business Commander™ has been available since July 2003, and has already spawned a number of customized databases for businesses throughout California. Manufacturers, service industries, on-line resellers, associations, and government agencies have optioned to have RCC build a customized database, starting with Business Commander. To date, RCC has invested $60,000 in the development of Business Commander. These savings are passed onto the customer.
